AREAS OF RESEARCH INTEREST

Elite Politics: I aim to apply social network analysis to examine how informal connections among political elites shape formal power structures. I focus on observing social networks from the perspective of temporal evolution.

Cliometrics: I aim to use widely distributed historical documents to construct databases and utilize them to answer important political science questions. I favor a synthesis of historical textual analysis and data analysis.

Political Discourse: I aim to explore how regimes manipulate political discourse to produce significant political and economic outcomes. I aim to use computational political science methods to analyze political discourse.
